

ADP Canada Honoured as Finalist in three categories at the 2020 Canadian HR Awards

TORONTO, ONTARIO - July 29, 2020 - ADP Canada has been selected as a finalist for Most Innovative Use of HR Technology, Best HR Communication Strategy and Best Learning & Development Strategy in the seventh annual Canadian HR Awards, presented by HRD Canada and supported by Canadian HR Reporter.

The Canadian HR Awards celebrates the outstanding achievements of HR teams, leaders, employers and service providers across the nation.

Finalists were selected following an open call for nominations to HRD Canada and Canadian HR Reporter's nationwide readership of 34,800 HR professionals.

"We're extremely proud and honoured to be recognized in not in one, but three categories at this year's awards," said Holger Kormann, President of ADP Canada. "It's truly a reflection of the amazing work done by our talented and dedicated team across the country. We also want to extend a congratulations to the other finalists, many of whom are ADP clients, who've also been recognized for delivering great work during 2020's more than challenging setting."

"This has been an incredibly challenging year for HR professionals," said Canadian HR Awards project director Jessica Duce. "The list of finalists is a true snapshot of the best and brightest in HR and honours those who have stepped up and put their people first at a time when it mattered most. It's our honour to acknowledge and celebrate this deserving group at the September show."

Winners will be selected by an esteemed independent judging panel and revealed during a virtual awards show on September 16.

For the full list of finalists, visit www.hrwards.ca.